International Activities 2.0

Department of Economics & Management - University of Pavia
Double-Degrees at Unipv

The Department of Economics and Business has successfully launched 13 double degree programs with the most important universities in Europe, some of them are members of the HERITIES network; these bilateral agreements allow students who participate to obtain at the end of the period of study the Italian master and the master's degree at the partner university.

International exchange agreements have also been initiated with the University of Blumenau in Brazil and the University of Hanoi in Vietnam.

There is a plan to prepare a Double Degree Agreement with the School of Business Administration at the Southwestern University of Finance and Economics in China and the University of Cadiz in Spain and finally an exchange agreement with the University of Birmingham in England.
What’s HERMES Network?

HERMES: Higher Education and Research in Management of European universities is a strategic alliance of 25 worldwide universities in 15 countries.

The HERMES network was founded in November 1997 as an initiative of the École de Management Strasbourg (former IECS) of the Robert Schuman University in Strasbourg.

Three years later, on March 31st 2000, the HERMES Charter was voted on by the General Assembly in a ceremony at the European Parliament.

The Department of Economics and Management (previous Faculty of Economics) is member of the network since 2000.

Welcome to the Department of Economics & Management

During the academic year 2012-2013 the Faculty of Economics of University of Pavia celebrated its fifty years of life. This anniversary coincided with a symbolic rebirth of our organization in the form of Department of Economics & Management, following the changes in University regulations adopted in recent years. It is therefore a particularly important moment which marks not only the celebration of a past and an important present but also opens a new phase of life for our community.

The Department of Economics and Management offers students the opportunity to study a wide variety of topics from the functioning of economic systems, micro and macro phenomena to applied economics for business activities. The teaching approach includes Double Degree courses, international and research training in English.
